Speak Up!

A rich sponsor has decided to set up a contest: students must present projects of egalitarian schools and the best project will be funded.

With your team, imagine a project of a non-discriminatory school. There are many forms of discrimination you can think of: discrimination against women, disabled people, special needs students, lower social classes, homosexuals, etc. You may find it easier to focus on one category. You must:

- Give your school a name that is meaningful.
- Imagine the school facilities, daily organization, classes, clubs, subjects that are taught, canteen, homework... What exactly would make it non-discriminatory?
- Try to think about feasibility: who would bear the project? Can it be done immediately? How much will it cost?
- What would the advantages of your project be? The limits?

You have 1h30 to prepare your project. You must choose 2 reporters to present it to the other groups (1 seconde and 1 student from another class) in 5 minutes. You can illustrate it with pictures.

You may use 2 computers and 1 dictionary per team.
